A new roller holds less paint, so you must return to the paint tray more often.

A used roller absorbs more paint from the tray, it means the roller will cover more wall, saving time and effort.

Our tool encourages painters to clean rather than throw away rollers.

Furthermore, a new roller may leave lint on the freshly painted wall. And you must either remove lint of a new roller or pick lint from the wall. Both are time consuming and frustrating.

The used roller has already lost its loose fibers so they won't be left on the wall.

A roller can hold a large amount of paint, and they are not cheap. Tossing them after every job is neither cost efficient, nor environmentally friendly.

The Paint Roller Saver makes the job hassle free, easy and quick, taking the chore out of cleanup.
